Tuesday Club Illustrates Section Idea For Chamber

THOMAS D

WATSON

THE beautiful new clubhouse of the Tuesday PRES. MAKES Afternoon club of this city was officially used for the first time Monday afternoon when its executive board met there to plan for the reception and housewarming, when it will welcome the public to its home Monday afternoon, March 12, from

This housewarming will mark a milestone in the history of Glen dale, which has reason to be very proud of the fact that this club-house will compare favorably with any other in California, even in cities of much larger population.
It also marks a milestone in th history of the organization, which has reached its majority of eight een years with a membership closely approximating 1000, and which, in addition to its regular club programs is supporting nine flourishing sections covering the special interests of members.

The clubhouse and its beautiful setting on four lots at the corner of Lexington drive and Central avenue also represents the most wonderful business enterprise and teamwork on the part of members who had the courage to go to work to realize their ideals and who have put on a money-raising cam-paign which has been a liberal education to the community. It has shown what can be accomplished shown what can be accomplished by united effort, enthusiasm and unremitting hard work.

The buildings and grounds have cost $100,000 and about $20,000 more have been needed to provide equipment and furnishings. These huge sums have not staggered the ers but have stimulated then to harder work, which has won th respect and admiration of the community and the confidence of the corporations that have been willing to help finance them by long time

They have blazed the path for other organizations which might well follow their example.

In our editorial of February 14 under the caption, "Is Glendale Over-organized?" we recommended that the neighborhood improve ment associations be turned into ment associations be turned into branches of sections of the cham ber of commerce.

This section plan has been work ed out in a very efficient manner by the Tuesday Afternoon club its sections being different activ ities instead of localities.

Since this editorial appeared we have receved considerable favor able comment from the citizens at large. In fact, the only unfavorable comment came from the chamber

Plans for a Community Sing and program to be given next Monday night at the high school auditorium were formulated at a joint meeting of the music committee of Glendale Community Service, of which A. The song leaders' institute was a very enthusiastle session last night and was attended by a number of visitors, including Mrs. Charles H. Toll and Mrs. Daniel Campbell. Some splendid choral effects were obtained. The matter of a surprise song service for Easter morning was taken up and it was voted unanimously that this matter be presented to the executive board of Glendale Community Service for its sanction.

comment came from the chamber of commerce, it accepting the editorial as a challenge and not as constructive criticism, as intended. We are aware that the welfare of Glendale depends a great deal on an efficient civic body to help and advise the city officials in their work for the needs of the city, and we are convinced more than ever that the chamber of commerce is the proper agency.

We have talked with members of the different improvement associations and have been assured that the consolidation of the civic clubs of the city would be well received if the chamber of commerce would put the proposition up to them in the proper form.

HIGH GIRLS' TEAM EVERINGTON CAR PLAYS PASADENA THIS AFTERNOON

Col. James Everington says:
"You never know what's coming next." In proof he cites his own experience Sunday when he was driving along Santa Monica boulevard in all peace and security with a machine full of passengers, including a row of little folks on the back seat—when, whiz! bang! out of a side street drove another machine whose driver was looking around instead of ahead, and crashed into the Everington car. The Colonel escaped unmarred, but Mrs. Everington has a dark bruise under one eye. All were more or less shaken and bruised and the car will be in the hospital for a fortnight. The man who did the damage meekly acknowledged his error and will foot the bill. Meanwhile the Colonel is taking his exercise on foot. Many Things Happening at the High School Today '

HAS POWERFUL AMENDMENTS

City Atty. Hartley Shaw Analyzes Proposed Measures

In a written report to the city council, City Attorney Hartley charter amendments of the council. The report follows:

Inquiries have been made of me regarding the charter amendments which were drawn by me at the request of the Council, and which the council at its last meeting or-dered submitted to the electors of the city at the next election, and I therefore submit the following statement as to the purposes and effects of said amendments:

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 1 This amends Section 10 of Article VI and Section 6 of Article XXIII.

These sections deal with the con struction of street and other local improvements and with the matter

By the proposed amendment Section 6 of Article XXIII is confined strictly to the subject of lot cleaning and no substantial change is made in the provisions regarding the same, but all reference to stred! and other public improve-ments, except lot cleaning, is eliminated from this section.

charter authorize the council to pass an ordinance establishing a scheme for the installation of local improvements and Jie making of ubmitting of bids on such work by the council, and the creating of a revolving fund for that purpose. The provisions, however, are quite brief and it has been doubted by some attorneys whether the pro-vision regarding a revolving fund is adequate to legalize a bond is-sue for such work. The amendments which are proposed to be in corporated in Section 10 of Article VI cover the subject in much more serted in a local improvement or dinance and providing more fully for the manner of creating a re-volving fund, and what is to be done regarding the same.

The provision regarding a re volving fund is also enlarged to authorize such fund to be created either by a bond issue or by special tax, either of which modes is sub ject to the provisions of Section 12 of Article XI of the charter, which would require a 2-3 vote of the electors to authorize the issuance of bonds or the levy of a special tax. In all cases where the levy of a tax is feasible, it has the advantage of not increasing the bur den by the payment of interest. The proposed provision regarding a revolving fund also specifically provides that the profits of any work done therefrom shall be paid back into the fund and remain a part thereof, except that any profits made from the work, or interest on street bonds issued therefor, may be used to pay interest on bonds is-sued to create the revolving fund. The charter does not, at present make such provision.

The proposed amendment also authorizes the city not only to bid on contracts for public improvements, but also, if it so desires, to construct the same by direct emnent of labor and purchase of materials without letting contractly or bidding thereon. The latter provision is not now in the charter.

It is the belief of the council, in ordering this provision inserted, that money can, in this manner, be saved to property owners on the construction of street improvements, as they would, in this man ner, only have to pay the actual cost, whereas a bid would have to include an allowance for contingencies which might now arise.

The amendment also proposes to make it possible for the city to the guarantee payment of street improvement bonds, or, if it is not desired to go to that extent, to promay be advanced to pay delinquent installments thereon so that bonds may be promptly paid without waiting for delinquent property owners. Such provision as fais will operate to strengthen the credit of these bonds and will therefore enable them to be sold to investors at a better price which will, of course, operate to the advantage of the property owners in obtaining for them lower costs for their work. The discount charge which usually prevails in street improvement bonds not so protected is, of course, borne by the property owners in the form of an increased cost of the work.

The amendment also provides that before the city proceeds to do any work by contract, or by pro-ceeding without contract, there must be an estimate of the expenses, and a certificate by the City Controller that funds will be available to pay this expense. This prevents the city from, at any time, getting into any difficulties by undertaking more work than it can out of the treasury on presentation of the bond or coupons without a warrant from the controller. This amendment was submitted at the suggestion of a former city controller, and its purpose is to eliminate unmecessary bookkeeping. The bonds and coupons are signed by the proper city officials, and it seems unnecessary to have the controller go through the form of drawing a warrant for payment thereof as the charter now requires.

There is also a provision that the council may, by resolution, authorize the employment of the which is may undertake without passing an ordinance such as is required in case of permanent employees by the charter.

ances shall not take effect for 30 days after passage, and that certain cordinances may go into effect at the will of the council, but there is the controller go through the form of clear up this uncertainty, the provision that he shall appoint and remove his deputies, and of the council. The provision still remains that the city attorney must be an elector of the city of Glendale when appointed, but the two years provision is eliminated. It was the charter now requires.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 4 This proposes to amend Sections 6 and 7 of Article VI relating to

The amendment to Section 6 cuts down the time limit which must elapse between the introduction and passage of an ordinance from five day to two days. The purpose of this is to enable the council to pass an ordinance at any regular meeting after it has been intro-duced at the preceding regular meeting. The present provision of the charter probably meant to es-tablish the same result, but as the council has now two regular meet-ings in one week during two weeks of every month, the provision as now worded does not allow an ordinance to be introduced at one meeting and passed at the next. Many of the ordinances are mere formal documents in connection with street improvements, and there is no reason why greater speed in passing them should not be allowed. The provision requiring an ordinance to be passed at a regular or adjourned regular meeting is retained in the section. This mecessary laborers to do any work which it may undertake without passing an ordinance such as is required in case of permanent employees by the charter.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 2

This proposes to amend Section 3 of Article IV of the charter, which provides that the council must fix the compensation of all city officers and employees by crdinance.

The amendment provides a separate fund for general budget expenditures and another for Public Service department expenditures, each to be of not more than five hundred dollars. It is quite often necessary to make small payments in eash, especially with the public service department business, and as the provision now in force has been proven inadequate, this provision is simply it state that the council may fix a maximum, or a maximum and a minimum, compensation and authorize the city manager to determine the amount to be received within the limit so fixed. It is examined the condition of the purpose.

The amendment provides a separate fund for general budget expenditures, and another for Public Service department expenditures, each to be of not more than five hundred dollars. It is quite often necessary to make small payments in each especially with the public service department business, and as the provision now in force has been proven inadequate, this provides that time.

This same amendment proposes to amend Section 7 of Article XI, the amendment consisting of a provides that certain ordinarce as they will obtain notice of its introduction through the press in time to enable them to attend the next regular meeting and its cannot be passed at a special may desire to be present and proviets the formal passage of an ordinance as they will obtain notice of its introduction through the in each estimate the compensation of all city officers and employees by crdinance.

The amondment provides as expenditures, each to be of not more than five hundred dollars. It is quite often necessary to make small payments in each expenditures, each to be of not more than five hundred matter of vacancies in all elective offices. Since the charter took effect, there have been vacancies in the Board of Education and offices of City Clerk and City Treasurer and no express provision was found in the charter for filling the same. The vacancies were, of course, filled, but it is desired to make the charter more definitely provide for same, and also as to the time during same, and also as to the time during which the person to fill a vacancy shall hold office. It is proposed to add the provision for filling vacancies in the Board of Education and in other elective offices, and also a general provision that all persons who fill vacancies in elective offices shall serve only until their successors can be elected and qualified, or until the end of a term, if it expires can be elected and qualified, or un-til the end of a term, if it expires immediately after a city election. The provision as to filling vacan-cies in the council remains un-changed.

practically, but the charter does not specifically provide for it. There is also added to this section a provision that temporary employment may be authorized without passing an ordinance therefor. This provision was placed in this section as a matter of con-venience rather than to rewrite the whole of Section 1 of Article IV, which would have to be amended to insert this provision. The charter now requires an ordinance to create a position, but there is sometimes need for a temporary appointment which could be as well authorized by resolution and save the expense of printing an ordi-

REAPPORTIONMENT

The only argument advanced against reapportion ent in California is that it would not be expedient Thus is the constitution waved aside, its provisions set at naught, and the attempt made to establish expediency as superior to the law. But, constitution or no, the question of expediency hardly is to be set-tled by a word from the minority. The wishes and purposes of the majority naturally have to be con-sulted before final decision can be reached on a matter of public policy.

In the southern end of the state the growth of social and industrial gain, has been accentuated. If a year ago it was remarkable, today it is marvelous. Since the census of 1920, which gave Los Angeles tenth rank numerically, that city has stepped easily into fifth place. The cluster of thriving towns about it have flourished in proportion and continue to do so. Long Beach is at about the 100,000 mark. Pasadena is prosperous as never before, beating its own records in all that indicates development. The group comprising Venice, Ocean Park and Santa Monica flourish, achieving much and expectant of more. Glendale is pointed to with pride for its expanding social and commercial life. And there are Reapportionment could not by any political hocus pocus be long delayed. Were it attended to immediately, the demand for farther change would be slow in coming. And were the matter settled now, the changes would be less drastic, as viewed at the north, than they are certain to be after a period of deliberate delay.

Once a woman on the witness stand was asked her age. She blushed and hesitated, plainly reluctant of reapportionment would be wise to ponder.

Joseph Liu, a Chinese student at a Bible institute, dead because when illness seized upon him he lost faith in the tenets of the civilization he was supposed to have adopted. Professing to be an American by preference, in the crisis he threw off the cloak, and became the Oriental that doubtless at heart he all the time had been. Civilization often is spoken of as a mere veneer. After generations it seems to be permanent, breaking through to innate savagery only in the utmost passion of hatred or fear. It is too frail a veneer to encompas and conceal an Orientalism that has persisted for ages.

This Chinese student, spurning the administration of medicines recognized as having a value, had resort in much the same way the people of the United.

In much the same way the people of the online states have undertaken the enormous task of striking at the alcohol evil at its source. And the containing some sixty ingredients including pulverized as optum, cocaine and the like, is to dry up the spring.

Racial instincts are deep-planted, in the very mar-row of the individual. The Chinese does not become American by putting on American clothes and adopting outwardly, the customs of an alien people.

"Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isaiah ii 4. In this text is embodied the spirit that served as inspiration not only to Isaiah, but to others of the prophets of old. It is a noble prophesy, and it seems in no part to have been fulfilled. It is a noble prophesy, and it seems in no part to have been fulfilled. In the hearts of men is a great desire for peace, but above this desire, and sweeping aside its suggestions, is a militar-ism that is a threat and a burden to the whole world. But the desire, the yearning, the vague reaching for eace and justice, may be as a seed yet to spring into budding and to full fruitage. To such hope, at least,

The great Lincoln said that no nation could exist half slave and half free. The principle he laid down well might flave been made broader in its application; or no civilization can exist half in the enjoyment o of armed men and the thunder of guns. Half may not follow industrial pursuits unperturbed, while the other half is devoting its energies to destruction. Until civilization shall unite in the common purpose of building a better world, society—not here and there an isolated unit, but society as a whole—will exist in a condition of peril.

These facts seem lost to the sight of men of small ion. Unhappily some such men are in public stan. They cherish the delusion that so long as no explosions are taking place in their immediate environment; while violence, pestilence, famine and serried bayonets are separated from them by the width of a sea, they are safe. They think "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world."

News from Washington is that an attempt will be made by congress to defeat the army bill unless there shall be consent to pass also the provision in full for rivers and harbors. Some congressmen have been like that. The appropriation for rivers and harbors, the consensus as it may be, often has been the instrument for purveying provender from the pork barrel.

THE MASTERY OF FEAR

Exponents of psychology, particularly those who term themselves psychoanalysts, have had much to say concerning the domination of fear. Men and women are afraid. They are afraid of hardship, of sickness; of friends, lest these be unfaithful, of sickness; of friends, lest these be unfaithful, of enemies lest these work injury. In every relation of life they are afraid, and hampered by a cowardice value, and conceived on a low plane. So far as they shudder in contemplation of death. Doubtless the psychoanalysts have put forth much that is without value, and conceive on a low plane. So far as they have aided the race in overcoming the mastery of fear, they have accomplished great good.

There is a form of fear that is not to be banished. This is the emotion set up by a guilty conscience. The fear is not so much that of being punished. It is more poignant than the prospect of punishment

The fear is not so much that of being punished. It is more poignant than the prospect of punishment could induce, for often it leads men to proclaim themselves guilty and worthy of punishment. The dread of discovery, the constant apprehension that a detaining hand is to be thrust out, creates a state of mind that is fear. The consequence of being found out is not the ogre haunting the hunted man. The knowledge that his conduct has been such as to cause him to be hunted, is the phantom that abides with, and tortures him. and tortures him.

Recently a man walked into jail and gave himself up. He was one of a gang of automobile thieves. At the time his comrades had been convicted, he had fled. For two years he had been a fugitive, and yet none pursued him. Almost he had been forgotten. He was driven back to accept the consequences of his act. Fear drove him.

Timidity about the ordinary relations in life may be conquered. The fear arising from a guilty conscience is no imaginary ill, to be banished by psychology. The treatment of such fear belongs to the

A magazine writer sets forth at considerable length, apparently in good faith, the hoar and baseless doc-trine that the United States entertains ambitions to have and to hold both Canada and Mexico. The plain truth is that it has no desire to possess either, and being prejudiced against theft, would stifle the impulse even did such impulse exist.

One of the lessons the world is slowly learning is that the way to get rid of any evil that afflicts numanity is to stop it at the source.

The world has gone on picking up after the devil and his works throughout the centuries. We have taken it for granted that certain gigantic evils are neces-sary. We have even been stupid and blasphemous enough to call them "human nature." We are slowly finding out that they have about as much right to be called human nature as small-pox, yellow fever, and cancer have to be called human nature.

So the world is timidly and fumblingly attempting to stop

There was a meeting of electrical engineers recently. Papers were read and discussed. The meeting was in Chicago and New York. With one thousand miles stretching between them, the two groups were one. They were presided over by a single officer. A Chicagoan's address would be interrupted by a New Yorker's query for light on some certain point. When a paper was read in New York, Chicago listened, and ventured an opinion as to its merits.

This is not an age of miracles. Not at all. Science does these things through processes that Science does these things through processes that have been humanly thought out. They are just as wonderful as miracles. The old belief that distance had been annihilated when the telegraph was invented, was emphasized with the laying of the cable. Wonderful as were those achievements, basic steps in the long march that has been taken since, they seem dwarfed by the accomplishments of today.

The meeting at which the audience was separated so many miles could not have been possible save for the telephone with a loud-speaking device. But that it was possible suggests improvements such as hardly dreamed of yet. It does not seem improbable that ultimately communication between individuals on different video (1) on different sides of the globe will be as easy as though in a quiet room they conversed face to face.

For several days a man was in the witness chair in Chicago telling the purported iniquities of detective agencies. Subsequent developments proved him to have been an active but rather stupid liar. Not that detective agencies are flawless at that.

Mrs. Bartow has resigned as secretary of the Tournament of Roses association, after service of sixteen years with that very useful organization. Of course, it is a Pasadena body, but it functions for all of southern California, and helps to make the whole world glad.

Mrs. Bartow has been instrumental in a great work, and what she has done is appreciated by a community wider than Pasadena. It was the pleasure of the writer to attend the first Orange Show given at San Bernardino. He went as a correspondent. That exhibition may have been small potatoes compared to the magnificence of the present, but he was a greenhorn in the citrus belt, and it hit him right between the eyes. Probably it was due to his glowing account that the management decided to make the show an annual event. This, however, is conjectural, and may have the seeming of immodesty. There were more oranges and lemons and grapefruit and limes at that first show than it would have been convenient to count. At that, the overwhelming attractions were of the quality often designated as peaches.

When the show was over the writer permitted himself to be corrupted by accepting boxes of the finest fruit ever plucked from trees. They arrived expressage paid, too. Ever since he has been hoping to see one, of the enlarged and improved editions of the show.

The arrest of a man and woman in Arizona for horse stealing introduces novel paragraphs into the news columns. This form of crime was supposed to be extinct. Perhaps the pair figured that the horse was soon to vanish and they wanted to grab one while still there was a chance.

The Jerboa is also known as the Cayptian Jumping Mouse. He has ust arrived in this country and is n the Bronx Zoo, New York, jump ing up to the guarantee. It is re-markable how many things are coming out of Egypt these days. It would surprise no one if the Cairo cables flashed news of the dir-covery of a flying camel with decovery of a Hyma cachable humps.

Everything a Jerboa does is done by leaps and bounds. Evidently equipped by nature with rubber beels that absorb all the shocks, he spend most of his time jumping en times his own length, much to the envy of all the visitors. There is probably no human being who has not, at times, longed to jump ten times his own length.

Most men will frankly admit that not a day passes without their feel-ing like jumping ten times their own length.

But somehow or other he never quite gets to the point of attempt-He might be able to jump en times his own length, or even fifteen or twenty if he tried, but he realizes it would look so darned

Suppose he determined to try it at the office—got up from his desk and jumped, say, seven times his eleven."

Consider the Jerboa. He can jump ten times his own length.

And what is more, he not only CAN jump ten times his own length, but DOES all his fellow workers would be sure to dispute whether he had jumped seven, eight, or nine times his own length and there would be the usual argument and the demand that he do it all over again! Surely when a man has jumped even three times his own length it should entitle him to some respect rather than bring about his subjection to a grilling cross-examination.

Many noted men have felt this impulse to jump ten times their own length. President Harding felt it the other day when some G. O. P. leaders got together and expressed the opinion he should not be a candidate for re-election. The President were will recall use to President, you will recall, was in bed several days and it was said he had a cold, but he was really in bed on account of the jump.

O. Howe Dumm and A. Lott Dummer were discussing this the other day. "It has been the ambition of my life to jump ten times my own length," insisted Dumm. "I have occasion to do so a dozen times a day. Only an hour ago, after repeated efforts, I got a man on the telephone and was in the midst of an important talk when I was cut off. I jiggled the hook for five minutes and central finally answered, "The potty who called you has hung up." I jumped three times my own length, but it was not nearly enough."

REV. EDMONDS TELLS OF MINISTRY OF PRAYER

Rev. W. H. Edmonds preached Rev. W. H. Edmonds preached on "The Ministry of Prayer" to a large congregation at the Presbyterian church. Sunday morning, taking his text from Paul's letter to the Colossians, 4th chapter, 12th verse: "Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, saluteth you, always laboring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God."

not wearied Him and this heavenly ministry, through which we are kept from falling, and our prayers find acceptance at the Father's throne. If you go to the throne of God with your petitions, asking something only for yourself, you will come back empty-handed. Our supplications must include others, and a blessing comes to everyone who ministers in another's behalf. The sun does not shine for itself; it shines for others. The bird does not sing for himself, he sings for others. Shall it be for those who have been redeemed at infinite cost, shall we be among those who shall fail to pray for the salvation of other souls?

"How can I carry on this ministry of prayer? How can it be a factor in my daily life? In the first place, it must be carried on through the Holy Spirit and by the Holy Spirit. When you are led to pray, it must be by the direction of the Holy Spirit.

"We should pray for rulers, for kings, for governments, and for those who are over us in authority. It was Daniel's prayer that transformed the whole governments of Persia and Babylon. This is the highest way of influencing national politics.

"We should pray for those who are seeking to hinder the progress of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. All work that is planned in prayer will end in power. Jotham became mighty because he prepared all his ways before the Lord.

THE KING THAT WAS

Tut-ankh-amen, you had your woes Three thousand years ago. Your ups and down, we must suppose, Three thousand years ago. You had your hopes, you had your fears, You had your smiles, you had your tears, You lived your little span of years, Three thousand years ago.

Your crown was bright, your word was law, Three thousand years ago. Your subjects held you much in awe. Three thousand years ago.

The ruler's power was yours alone, You sat upon a royal throne And all your world was much your own, Three thousand years ago.

And there were millions much like you, Three thousand years ago, Who worked and played and worried through, Three thousand years ago. The sun rose on their little days. The bright stars spread before their gaze, They came and were and went their ways

There were the ruler and the slave Three thousand years ago, The fool, the wise man and the knave Three thousand years ago. And then the pomp and pride and lust And sword of power fallen in rust All mingled in the common dust Three thousand years ago.

Three thousand years ago.

And jewels, gold and fertile lands Three thousand years ago Fell back to earth from mummied hands Three thousand years ago.
So in my soul long may they ring
These words: "This brown and mummied thing Dried up like parchment was a king Three thousand years ago!

His people that this body is going doctors all the credit, and never His people that this body is going on forever. This body is only a temporary house of clay. When we have our resurrected bodies at the coming of the Lord, there will be no no more sorrow, pain, sickness or death. While here in the flesh we must expect weakness, infirmity and suffering. God does heal. He is continually doing so. The trouble is that many believers give
